The books will be kept separately, however, and the work will still be under the direction of the land commissioners, the attorney general, secretary of state, and state treasurer. PRESENT ONE OF SCHILLER'S PLAYS

"JOAN OF ARC" GIVEN TONIGHT AT HARVARD COLLEGE.

MAUDE ADAMS IS STAR

And Charles Frohman the Manager Of Special Company Which Presents Drama in Stadium.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Boston, June 22.—Crowds of visitors from New York and other cities have arrived here, to attend the grand spectacular performance of Schiller's "Joan of Arc" at the Harvard Stadium in Cambridge this evening. The performance, which will be on a scale of unprecedented magnitude and promises to be the greatest and most brilliant dramatic spectacle ever seen in the United States will be given under the auspices of the German Department of Harvard University, by a special company headed by Miss Maude Adams and under the artistic management of Mr. Charles Frohman of New York.
Schiller's "Joan of Arc," the English version of which will form the basis of the spectacular dramatic production, has been performed hundreds of times in various theatres in Europe

PERFORMANCE AND THE TOTAL COST WILL BE ENORMOUS.

The entire financial proceeds from the performance—and they are expected to be large—will be devoted to the German Museum of Harvard University, which is one of the chief monuments to the administration of the recently retiring President Charles Eliot. The arrangements for the performance were made by a committee of the German Department of Harvard, under whose auspices the spectacle will be given. Every detail was carefully worked up by the artist John W. Alexander, ably assisted by Miss Maude Adams and Mr. Charles Frohman.

THREE WEDDINGS OF SOCIAL IMPORTANCE

Lincoln-Ames Nuptials in Boston, Gartner-Padgett in Columbia, Tenn., and Smith-Bigelow in San Francisco.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Boston, Mass., June 22.—The wedding of Alexander Lincoln of Brookline and Miss Eleanor Ames, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ames of St. Paul, Minn., attracted a large gathering of society people to North Easton this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Paul and, occasionally, in the United States, but even the largest theatres and companies were utterly inadequate for the representation of the heroic scenes and action of the drama, as contemplated by the poet-author.

Tonight, for the first time in history, the dramatic figure of the inspired Maid of Orleans will appear in a setting of adequate proportions. The enormous arena of the Stadium will be the scene upon which several thousand men, carefully trained and drilled, will give a realistic representation of the battle on the cliffs near Orleans, in which the French were led to victory over the English by the inspired Joan of Arc. It will be a gorgeous spectacle, this battle, in which several thousand men, among them two hundred knights and spearmen in full armor, garbed, accoutred, armed and otherwise equipped historically true to the style and type of the early part of the fifteenth century, will enact a wonderfully realistic battle scene, the like has never been seen at any dramatic performance in this country or in Europe.

Of course, Miss Maude Adams, the "Joan of Arc" of tonight's spectacular performance, will be the principal character in the magnificent scenes of the presentation. Dressed in full armor and mounted on a snow-white charger of Arab blood, she will gallop into the fray, bearing the banner of the Virgin, directing the French forces and leading them to glorious victory. She will be supported by a competent company of players and about 1,300 supernumeraries.

An idea may be formed of the magnitude of the production, from the fact that the properties required include 800 full suits of armor, trappings for two hundred chargers, costumes, equipments and arms of various kinds for thirteen hundred men, in addition to the scenery and thousands and one necessities necessary to make the presentation as lifelike and historically true as art and the most lavish expenditure of money can make it.

After many weeks of rehearsing in New York the entire company, with its trainload of scenery and properties arrived here yesterday and were temporarily housed at the Colonial Theatre, where the final rehearsals were taken to the stadium for its final rehearsals of intricate battle scenes upon the actual scene of tonight's spectacle. The large special orchestra, which will play a special arrangement of Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony at the performance tonight, also rehearsed at the stadium yesterday and today.

It is said that Charles Frohman regards the Harvard performance as the most ambitious act of his long career as a manager. It will certainly be the high-water mark of the distinguished stage career of Miss Adams. Mr. Frohman was determined to make this performance an artistic success and gave carte blanche to Miss Adams and the technical managers of the spectacle. Never was money spent more lavishly upon a dramatic performance.

FORMER RESIDENTS' HOME WAS ALMOST DESTROYED

W. H. Whalen, Formerly with North-Western Here, Has Experience in Tucson, Arizona.

Out in Arizona discharged employees who carry a grudge against their former employers have a primitive and exceedingly dangerous method of satisfying their spite, as W. H. Whalen, at one time foreman of the roundhouse in Janesville, found out to his sorrow. Mr. Whalen is now superintendent of the Tucson Division of the Southern Pacific Railroad and resides in Tucson. On the night of June 17 he and his wife while sleeping in the home of their home were thrown from their bed by a terrible explosion which completely wrecked their home but failed to do either of them any injury. It is thought that some discharged employee set off a charge of dynamite under the house in order to "get even."

TRAIN AUDITORS THOUGHT TO BE MERELY A MYTH

Said occasionally the report becomes current that the railroads are about to take steps to prevent or detect any dishonesty on the part of passenger conductors who may or may not be in the habit of "holding out" part of the cash fares they receive on their runs. A rumor of this sort is now going the rounds, but instead of the common or garden variety of "spotters" a new name has been given to these railroad detectives, that of "train auditor." It is said that it is the duty of these auditors to board any train without warning and take charge of the cash receipts. In order that their record may be compared with the records of previous runs of the regular conductors. It is perhaps needless to say that the implication of dishonesty which this alleged move on the part of the company attaches to all conductors, is exceedingly distasteful to those conductors who are "on the square" and likewise more than disquieting to those who are any, who have the itching palm. It is more than likely that these preventative measures will never materialize but are simply set afloat for the purpose of discouraging any dishonest leanings on the part of those whom the company are unable to keep close tab at all times.

'BACK TO THE FARM'

In the message which is ringing through the large cities of the world, and is the call destined to be the means of transforming thousands of lives from conditions hardly better than servitude into the fullness of independent manhood.

The last generation developed our great industries and most of the enormous fortunes gained in financial and commercial pursuits, in the meanwhile, agriculture made strides of a kind. But the urban population increased in greater ratio than the rural population, until the world had unemployed problems, housing problems, and many others, indicating unhealthy economic conditions.

Now the city man joins the farmer in his "Back to the Land" call. Our social system is out of balance. The congestion of cities must be relieved and the surplus population diverted to the farm.

Many men have no hope of ever earning more than $1,500 a year; the limit of a much larger number is $1,200; a vastly greater number still will never command more than $1,000; while those whose maximum possibility is $800 are countless. It is only a very small percentage in any of these classes who are able to save any appreciable sum of money. Every one of them who is able-bodied and industrious, could have a much larger cash balance at the end of each year if he were cultivating the land.

Rural life is becoming more and more convenient and attractive, and, what is quite as important, more profitable, and there can be no doubt that a reaction has set in and that the tendency in the future will be towards the healthier and more independent country life. "God made the country and man made the city." It is the natural destiny of humanity gradually to drift back to the soil and to those surroundings most favorable for the creation of happy, prosperous homes.

To all such who desire to increase their net income; to acquire a property and to be independent; to work for themselves rather than for another; to have for themselves the total sum of their own labor instead of dividing it with an employer; to live a larger and fuller and freer and healthier life than that which is made up of days spent in the confinement of office or shop, and nights in the endless chamber of a city flat; to secure a home where children can have an abundance of "out-of-doors," grass, flowers, trees and sunshine; where they can run and romp and play and make all the noise they wish and be well; we extend an invitation to investigate the special advantages offered in the Canadian Pacific Railway Migration Block.

We offer you an opportunity to buy land on Crop Payment Plan No Crop—No Pay

In Sunny Southern Alberta, where farmers have paid for as much as 160 acres from a single year's crop. Think of it! A man becoming absolutely independent in a single year, from a single crop of this fertile land. We have a 72-page folder, illustrated, giving full information about these lands, how to buy them, a copy of the contract you make with the Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., and all information. It is called "FACTS." Write for it today. It is free.

It costs nothing to investigate. You can decide what to do after you have made your investigation. We are anxious to get this country settled up and are offering homesteads at very low prices.

PREPARE FOR FLIGHT IN AIR

WRIGHT BROTHERS TAKE CARE TO AVOID ACCIDENT IN TRIALS.

MAY BEGIN TESTS FRIDAY

Discover That Mishap in Which Orville Was Injured Last Fall Was Due to Faulty Propeller—Will Use New Machine.

Washington, June 22.—Every precaution is being taken by the Wright brothers to prevent a repetition of the accident which nearly cost the life of Orville at Fort Myer last September in their preparations for the government tests.

It is not likely that they will make their speed trial over the course to Alexandria, Va., on account of the roughness of the country in that direction, but it is most probable that they will take the five mile course in the direction of Falls Church, Va., west of Fort Myer. The two aviators occupied the day in working on their aeroplanes.

The machine which Orville will use to complete the government trial is entirely new with the exception of the motor, which is the same one used in the machine wrecked last year. A double set of guy wires has been attached to the rear rudder.

Discovers Accident's Cause.

Orville Wright explained that although he had been under the impression that the accident last fall was due to the vibrations of those same guy wires, after an examination of the wrecked part of the machine at Dayton he was convinced that the accident was caused by the greater power of one propeller causing the entire rear part of the machine to strain on one side. This caused one blade of one propeller to strike the guy wires, breaking them from their fastenings and disabling the entire machine.

The brothers with their chief mechanic, Charles E. Taylor, and Lieut. B. D. Foulois of the signal corps have been working on the intricate arrangement of the wires bracing the plane. This is the most difficult part of the work of assembling the machine. The Wrights do not expect their aeroplanes will be ready to fly before Friday or Saturday.

Orville Wright said that while the speed trials across a rough country required new conditions to be met and overcome, he was certain that he would fulfill all the government requirements. As the machine is a new one, he said he would make several preliminary flights over the Fort drill grounds before venturing upon the official trial.

Dangerous for Aviators.

Since the flights last year the Fort Myer drill grounds have been entirely inclosed by trolley tracks. This makes it dangerous for a machine flying low.

A telephone wire which connected the aeroplanes shed with the headquarters of the fort was removed at the request of the Wrights, because of the additional danger. The speed trial of the Wright aeroplanes, which must be made in a flight over a course five miles from the fort and return will be the first cross country run ever made by a heavier-than-air machine over rough and hilly country. The endurance trial will require the Wrights to remain aloft for two hours, the machine carrying two men and sufficient fuel for a trip of 200 miles.

SEA MONSTERS IN DEATH FIGHT.

Whale Killed by Swordfish After a Desperate Battle.

Boston, June 22.—A fight between monsters of the ocean was witnessed off the Nantucket South Shoals Lightship by passengers and members of the crew of the steamer Esparta, which arrived here from Port Limon, Costa Rica. The combatants were a whale and great fish, believed to have been a swordfish. The former was vanquished.

The whale was the only one of the fighters visible. It lashed its tail violently, churning the water into a mass of foam, attacking its adversary fish with jaws. Finally, however, the whale was seen to throw its massive bulk clear of the water and then sink from sight. The waters for a considerable distance were red with blood.

Women Witness Fatal Fight.

St. Louis, June 22.—While 42 passengers, mostly women and children, stood on the upper deck of the steamer Omaha and watched a fight between J. T. Williams and Henry Townsend, rowdies, on the lower deck of a river steamer, Williams was killed and Townsend was badly injured.

HOLME'S STORE

IF YOU WERE DOING A $30,000 business each year and making a $6,000 profit, neither advancing nor dropping off, and some one proposed that you spend $200 in advertising to increase your profits $200, would you consider it a good investment?

It WOULD be a remarkably good investment.

First, you would get a great amount of publicity that would cost you nothing;

Second, you would get increased patronage which would cost you nothing and which you may be able to hold to your store for an indefinite time;

Third, if you continued this policy for eight years, you would be making $900 per year MORE than if you did not spend the $200 in advertising for $200 in profit.

The first two suggestions will be accepted generally because they are foregone conclusions. The third suggestion may not be easily understood, though it is a fact.

We maintain that $200 spent in advertising your business in the columns of the Gazette will increase your business each year over the preceding year in sufficient amount to make a profit of $200 and that if you continued this advertising for eight years on the same basis you would be making $900 more per year (taking the average increase for eight years) than if you did not advertise and your business remained at $30,000, neither advancing nor dropping off.

We make no pretensions to knowing whether the relation existing between profits and volume of business are correct, but simply give these figures to illustrate.

	Volume of business, $30,000	Advertising outlay, $200	Profits, $6,000	Increased profits, $200		Volume of business, $30,000	Advertising outlay, $200	Profits, $6,000	Increased profits, $200
1st year	$31,000	$200	$6,200	$200	1st year	$30,000	$000	$6,000	$000
2nd year	32,000	200	6,400	200	2nd year	30,000	000	6,000	000
3rd year	33,000	200	6,600	200	3rd year	30,000	000	6,000	000
4th year	34,000	200	6,800	200	4th year	30,000	000	6,000	000
5th year	35,000	200	7,000	200	5th year	30,000	000	6,000	000
6th year	36,000	200	7,200	200	6th year	30,000	000	6,000	000
7th year	37,000	200	7,400	200	7th year	30,000	000	6,000	000
8th year	38,000	200	7,600	200	8th year	30,000	000	6,000	000
Total	$276,000	$1,600	$55,200	$1,600	Total	$240,000	$000	$48,000	$000
			$48,000
			$ 7,200

It will be seen that in Table No. 1 where advertising is used in proportion to increase the total sales are $276,000 as compared to $240,000 in Table No. 2 where no advertising was used. The advertiser's profits were $55,200 in the eight years, while the non-advertiser's profits were only $48,000. THE DIFFERENCE IS $7,200, WHICH IS AN AVERAGE OF $900 INCREASE FOR EACH OF THE EIGHT YEARS.

One firm increased its business $12,000 in one year, through the advertising columns of the Gazette, when they thought $8000 increase was an impossibility.

One firm increased the sales on a certain article 600% in one season.

WHAT A DRY STATE MEANS

Ten thousand liquor establishments might close the saloons of Maine, but they could never make the state completely dry, for, even though all the breweries and distilleries of America should go out of business, the downcasters would still have their home-made beer. Nearly every family in eastern Maine makes beer of some kind, and as a result there are more distinct varieties of beer brewed and drunk in Maine than are listed on any recognized price list of fermented liquors on earth.

A leader is "Spring Bitters" beer, which has a basic flavoring of spruce boughs. Checkerberry, sarsaparilla, root and poplar bark are added, partly to "take off the curse," but chiefly from some fancied medicinal quality, the exact nature of which nobody is able to explain.

For a pronounced or hacking cough, and any other troubles of the respiratory organs, or for anything that can be distorted into a resemblance of an ailment of the lungs the beer is modified by omitting the flavor of wintergreen and substituting lungwort and cherry bark and rosemary leaves. In this way the suspicion of Intemperance is sidetracked.

Chronic cases of heart disease of long standing are very slow in yielding to the Maine beer treatment. Where the sufferer has been pronounced incurable, it happens often that even genuine corn beer, which holds 20 per cent of alcohol, cannot subdue the agonies without the addition of "a little gin" or "a dash of old Medford."

There is a Maine beer holding a wash of dry smartweed which will prevent the hair from falling out or turning gray, and there is a beer, rich in thymol, which can soften an indurated liver in six months, and scrape off the "hob-nails" if taken continuously for a year.

There is also a beer, infused with the root juices of dandelion and rhubarb, which is popular among women who claim to be much younger than they are, because it tones out the wrinkles at the corners of the eyes and plumps the cheeks and adds a peach-like bloom of youth to the features. There is no regular prescription specifying how much of this beer may be taken at a dose or how often the rejuvenator is to be administered, though the general directions are included in the formula which old medicine men write, "as much as you want."

Bloodroot beer, caddy from the life juices of the plant, is claimed to restore those who are love-sick, as well as to charm absent or reluctant men back to their former sweethearts. When used wisely it is said to have caused married women to elope with the husbands of their neighbors and led to open scandals which have been adjusted in the courts. Beer containing goldthread roots cures cancer, scrofula and skin eruptions. If mayweed is put into the beer compound he or she who drinks thereof will be married within the year.

Labella beer serves to diminish emphysema, and leads to slim waists and slim appetites; beer made from the heads of red clover in full bloom will eliminate cancerous humor from the system; a beer of hardback and willow bark will wear one from the tobacco, tea or coffee habits, and a beer from the Dutch or white clover beads will insure pleasant dreams to all who drink thereof.

No one known to fame has discovered a beer that is sure to cure corns or toothache, though it is possible that there are persons who are investigating along those lines.

Down in one of the dry counties in Florida at a country dance last winter the natives were concerned with thirst. Presently they commenced to show symptoms of hilarity and by 10 o'clock were laid up for repairs. The drink which put them to sleep was corn juice extracted from the pulp of sugar cane, and it beat any 40-proof whiskey for execution. The Maine plan is better.

TO ABOLISH THE FLY

"It happens every day, and so one pays very little attention. Maybe it is the butter, or perhaps the slice of bread alongside one's plate. Or else, quite possibly, it is the milk in the pitcher. But, whatever it is that attracts the omnipresent fly, its appearance, as it crawls over the food on the table, is unappetizing.

"The health authorities of New York city estimate that about one-half of the deaths from typhoid in the metropolis annually are attributable to the distribution of the germs by flies. But, serious as this matter is, it is of vastly less importance than the destruction of human life, particularly that of young children, by the bowel complaints which these insects are chiefly instrumental in spreading. It is reckoned that deaths from these latter maladies in New York would be reduced from 7,000 to about 2,000 a year if proper precautions were taken to prevent the breeding of flies.

"The insects will breed in fermenting vegetable or animal material of almost any kind. Garbage suits them best. The maggots and chrysalids have been found in great numbers in rotten straw mattresses, among old cotton garments, and even in waste paper that had been exposed to wet.

"Now, as far as stables are concerned, which are responsible for ninety-five per cent of the fly output in cities, the hatching of the insects can be absolutely prevented by the simple device of putting all manure into a covered receptacle, and removing the contents once a week. This receptacle should be a watertight bin or pit, provided with a cover, so as to prevent the ingress and egress of flies.

"The additional methods demanded are the following: Abolish all unnecessary outflows. Allow no accumulations of filth of any kind. Compel people to put all their garbage in covered cans, and remove the contents at least once a week. Compel owners of slaughter to keep all refuse in covered receptacles; and remove such waste at least once a week.

"As this is 'the time' this scrap of information and timely advice from the 'Technical World' is of interest. The common house fly is always regarded as a pest, but is seldom considered dangerous, and yet scientific investigation brings out the fact that this little pest is responsible for many diseases. Screens and cleanliness are health-promoters which should not be neglected.

THE CAPITAL CITY

The people of Wisconsin are justly proud of the Capital city for nature richly endowed the location, and the enterprising people of Madison have not been slow in exhausting every effort to make the city beautiful. For most in this philanthropic work today is the Madison Park and Pleasure Drive association whose annual report, covering 150 pages in a choice of illustrations, has just been issued.

This association was organized in 1892, when Madison had a population of 12,000. During the 17 years which have elapsed the city has more than doubled in population, while the park association has been busy in keeping pace.

A quarter of a million dollars has come into the treasury, largely through small contributions, and results accomplished indicate that every dollar has been intelligently invested.

The city is dotted with small parks and playgrounds, connected by boulevards, and at this season of the year presents a fairyland appearance.

The men who have wrought, without hope of financial reward, have been philanthropic and faithful stewards, to whom the people of the state are obligated, for Madison is the people's capital, and every citizen of the commonwealth has an interest in the city.

It is the home of one of the best universities in the land, made possible and supported by the people's money, as well as the stamping ground of the people's representation, who furnish all sorts of entertainment, both in and out of season.

When the new capital buildings are completed it will be the model city of the west, and the driving park association will help to preserve the model.

The screen proposition was disposed of in short order and the council can not be justly censured for action taken. The city has 2,500 voters and less than 10 per cent of the number cared enough about the regulation sought, to join in the petition. So long as public sentiment is indifferent to such propositions it is evident that a large majority of voters are satisfied with present conditions, and the council can not be expected to change them. A state law, similar to the Iowa statute, is the only remedy.

M. Dubois, a French engineer, has invented a fog-disperser, which promises to prevent accidents so common, of late, to sea-going craft. Almost every day these fog accidents are reported. Dubois' invention disperses the fog within a radius of 200 yards, and any vessel can use it, the same as wireless telegraphy.

Mayor Curie is to be complimented for using good judgment in filling the vacancy on the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. Mr. Hendricks is the right man for the place, and his appointment will give general satisfaction.

Longing.

The wanderer on his way,
 Longs bitterly for home,
 When he's tired of cities gay,
 And sounds of dashing foam.
 When his thoughts turn to some dear place,
 Or friend he longs to see,
 Whose kind face he cannot erase
 From the page of memory.

He may visit the mansions fine,
 Whose rich and grand hold sway;
 And the lights in their splendor shine
 On beauty's proud array,
 But amid all that gold can buy,
 That's false to gaze upon;
 He may think of the days gone by
 And playmates on the lawn.

It is strange, how in youth, we long
 To reach our manhood years,
 Then days we had meant for song
 Are full of sighs and tears.
 It proves we should never complain
 When joy seems far away;
 For perhaps we'll soon long in vain
 For blessings of today.

Grant, the Man of Mystery
 Col. Nicholas Smith, for many years editor of the Gazette, now a resident of Milwaukee, has written a number of books, which have been read with pleasure by his many friends. His latest production, and by far the best, has just come from the press of the Young Churchman Co., under the title of "Grant, the Man of Mystery."

Many biographies of the famous general have been written, but Col. Smith has produced more than a biography for the book sparkles with light and shades of character which could only be brought out by a life-long acquaintance, and this the author enjoyed.

Col. Smith knew Gen. Grant before the war, back in the days when both of them were struggling for a foothold. The sketch of his early life reads like the story of an older brother.

It is not only interesting but fascinating, for in the long and hard battle for recognition and an opportunity to show what was in him characteristics are revealed which permit for success which followed in rapid succession until he stood at the pinnacle, the world's greatest general.

The true historian has everything to reveal and nothing to conceal. This fact is fully recognized by Col. Smith in painting the life of Gen. Grant. It rings true to life from boyhood to the edge of time, and will be read with absorbing interest by every lover of the great man who contributed so freely to the nation's needs in the dark days of strife. The book is more fascinating than a novel and merits wide circulation.

Uncle Walt of Emporia

By WALT MASON
 (Copyright, 1909, by George Mathew Adams.)

Good old opulent John D. He would look with scorn on me; I consider I'm in luck, when I have an extra buck; buying PLUTOCRAT tea or buying coal always keeps me in the hole, and when I have paid the rent I am left without a cent. Yet I'm always gay and snug, happy as a tumbling, having still the best of times, grinding out my blame fool rhyme. Old John D., on 'other hand, frots away to beat the band; he is burdened with his care—though he isn't with his hair—and his health is going back, and his liver's out of whack, and his conscience has grown numb, and his wishbone's out of plumb, and he's trembling all the day lest a plunk may get away. Better be a corned beef, writing lyrics by the yard, with an appetite so gay I won't balk at prairie hay, than to have a mighty pile, and forget the way to smile!

RETURNABLE ENVELOPE

Extra Flap Can Be Folded Over Front for the Address.

In some forms of business, such as advertising and mail order business, it is important that the persons writing to reply, and therefore essential to provide means that action practically no trouble. One means is to include an address card, but often this is expensive when a great many letters are sent out.

The state department admits Mr. Sartoris resigned, but it diplomatically insists that his resignation was offered because of his falling health and his desire to seek a cooler climate. Mr. Sartoris now in New York on his way back to his former post to remove his effects after which he will tour Europe with his wife.

The rumors that Mr. Sartoris' resignation was not voluntary are being kept alive by his friends in Washington. These friends declare that the state department explanation does not explain, for the young man was here only a short time ago and looked the picture of perfect health. It is said also that he protested vigorously against his retirement from the diplomatic service, but to no avail.

These friends are authority for the statement that Mr. Sartoris' deposition is the result of a family feud and that he is not in good graces of General Frederick Dent Grant, his uncle, commander of the department of the lakes.

and the percentage of replies in small, as is often the case in mail order business, a postal will not always answer the purpose. A California man has solved the difficulty by designing a returnable envelope, which may be sent both closed and open. This envelope has an additional flap attached to the bottom, and after the recipient of the letter has opened it and perused its contents he may, if he wishes to reply, fold the extra flap over the front and have a practically new envelope with a clean space for the address and a new flap to seal down the back.

MOTHER'S DAY.

Mother is queen of the May.
 In many places, especially in the west, Mother's day, which is coming to be a national event, was observed for the first time.

In some of the cities churches were given over to the celebration of the day. Reverential tributes in the way of sermons, addresses and exercises were given to the mothers of America. The emblematic flower of the day is the white carnation.

Which is significant—
 Because the carnation was first cultivated as a flower 2,000 years ago, the very period when the empancipation of woman was begun.

It is fitting that one day should be given in honor of American motherhood. What a glorious history! From the little mother of Columbus, who inspired the voyages of the first American, down through the days of the pilgrim mothers and the mothers of the Revolution to the days of our own mothers, courage and purity and faithfulness have characterized the mothers of America.

Reference is not here made to those American women who detract from the dignity of womanhood by preferring to rear lap dogs rather than children, but to those real women, help-mothers of American men and noble mothers of American youth.

All hail to motherhood!
 The Saviour of the world in the crucial hour of his agony on the cross turned from his sufferings and the momentous issues of his great life mission to say to John, "Son, behold thy mother." On that fateful day on Calvary was motherhood forever blessed.

And Christian civilization does not forget—
 Because civilization is beginning to see and know that pure and strong mothers are fundamental to all the hopes for the advancement of the race.

And yet—
 How ungracious and stupid are we today in our maltreatment and neglect of mothers. Oftentimes more attention is given to the care of brute mothers for breeding purposes than to human mothers during their child-bearing period.

Is it not so?
 We must change from such stupidity into appreciation of motherhood, not only for the sake of the mother, but for the child and the race.

PHYSICIANS IN SESSION.

American Institute of Homeopathy
 Holds Convention in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., June 22.—The sixty-fifth annual meeting of the American Institute of Homeopathy opened here last evening with a great general session that was full of interest. The big Y. M. C. A. auditorium was thronged with medical men from every state in the Union when Dr. D. A. MacLachlan, chairman of the local committee of arrangements, rapped for order. Music and prayer were followed by addresses of welcome by Gov. Fred M. Warner, Mayor P. H. Brothmeyer and Dr. MacLachlan, to which response was made by Second Vice-President Joseph Hensley, M. D. Dr. William Davis Foster of Kansas City, the president, then delivered his annual address.

In the afternoon much preliminary work was disposed of and memorial exercises for deceased members were held. Today the various sections took up their work, which will continue until Saturday noon. Several societies allied with the institute also are holding their annual meeting here.

CIRCULATION

Up-to-Date Dentistry

If you have lost a front tooth, I can replace it in another one to match it perfectly. No plate in your mouth. I fashion the new tooth to your own remaining teeth by a delicate gold backing, out of sight and unobtrusive. My prices are reasonable, too, which deserves some consideration on your part.

A patient recently consulted me for an estimate as to the cost of certain work needed. He finally was persuaded to go to Chicago for the work.

A relative revealed to me the fact that the ultimate cost to him was three times what I asked him, besides he is in continual trouble and Chicago is a long way to go for relief.

My prices and my work are both right.

JAMES DALTON DIED LATE LAST EVENING

Landlord of New Madison House Succumbed to Blood-Poisoning Following an Attack of Erysipelas.

James Dalton, proprietor of the New Madison hotel and a resident of Janesville since his birth in September, 1871, died at his home, 615 West Milwaukee street, just before eleven o'clock last evening. He was stricken with malignant erysipelas about six weeks ago but had supposedly completely recovered from this malady and was able to be upon the streets last Saturday. That same day, however, he was seized with a chill and later on blood-poisoning developed. By reason of his weakened condition little hope for his recovery was entertained, though an expert surgeon to medical science was overlooked in the effort to save him.

His passing will be mourned by the many friends who have known him since his youth and by the local circle of friends with which he was prominently identified.

A wife and four small children—Maude, Marguerite, Edith, and Marie—survive him. There are also two brothers, Maurice and Matthew, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Han and Mrs. John Webber, all of this city.

The funeral will be held from St. Patrick's church Thursday morning at nine o'clock.

Fourteen Members of Association Class Went on Fishing Trip to Indian Ford.

Youthful "almuds" of the Junior class of the Y. M. C. A. arose in the wee, small hours of the morning yesterday and leaving here about three o'clock, fourteen of them, accompanied by Physical Director Birch, drove to Indian Ford to spend the day at fishing. The preparations for fishing the wily fishes out of the water were quickly made and each set about to secure more than the rest of the party. George Denison was the first one to feel a strong tug at the end of the line and shortly thereafter landed a two-pound pickerel. Following his capture the shouts of joy as each one announced that he had secured a fish or had merely pulled up a snag, came frequently. A good sized catch for each of the members of the party to take home was secured before four o'clock, when lines were reeled in and the boys departed for home. A number of other similar excursions are planned for during the coming months.

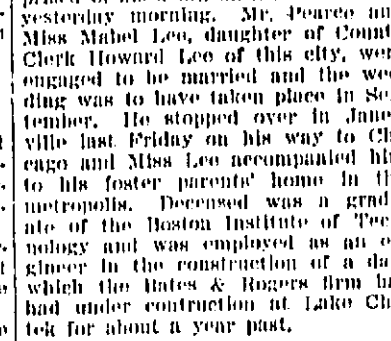

FUNERAL OF THE LATE CHADWELL PEARCE TODAY

Young Engineer Who Died in Chicago Monday Was Engaged to Marry Miss Mabel Lee of This City.

The funeral of the late Chadwell Pearce, who died in a Chicago hospital at three o'clock Monday morning, was held from the chapel in Rose Hill cemetery, Chicago, at half past two o'clock this afternoon.

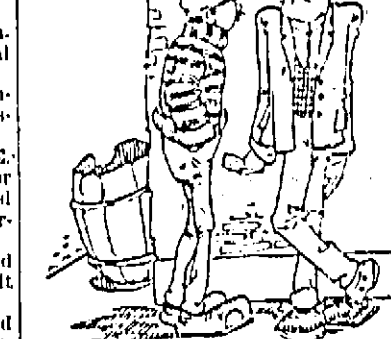

Mr. Pearce underwent what was expected to be a very simple operation for hardening of the glands of the neck Sunday forenoon. His relatives and friends, who were anxiously awaiting within telephone call to hear the result of his operation were not apprised of his death until seven o'clock yesterday morning.

Mr. Pearce and Miss Mabel Lee, daughter of County Clerk Howard Lee of this city, were engaged to be married and the wedding was to have taken place in September. He stopped over in Janesville last Friday on his way to Chicago and Miss Lee accompanied him to his foster parents' home in the metropolis. Deceased was a graduate of the Boston Institute of Technology and was employed as an engineer in the construction of a dam which the Bates & Rogers firm has had under construction at Lake Chicago for about a year past.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH HAD PICNIC

Big Crowd of Congregation And Children of School Had Merry Time at Crystal Springs.

Members of St. Paul's Lutheran church and Sunday school and of the parochial school yesterday journeyed to Crystal Springs, spending the day there in an enjoyable picnic. Beginning at ten o'clock boats were run between the grounds and the fourth avenue landing so that all in several hundred people assembled for an enjoyable time. The day was spent with games and amusements for the young people, and the children of the school went through some of their drills for the benefit of the older folks. A feature of the occasion for the grown-ups was the tug-of-war between the "bluebirds" and the "redwings," the single men being a little too strong for the married men and carrying off the honors. The following were the participants in the single men's tug-of-war:

Single men—J. Tatzlaff, H. Muenchow, C. Hall, Jr., O. Schmidt, A. Lutz, and A. Krueger.

Married men—J. Hemming, H. Buggs, W. Cronk, J. Blow, C. Hall, Sr., R. Benwitz, and A. Rogge.

WILLIAM J. TUCKER, EX-PRESIDENT OF DARTMOUTH COLLEGE.

Concord, N. H.—With the selection of Prof. Ernest Fox Nichols, D. Sc., formerly head of the department of physics at Dartmouth college, to succeed Dr. William Tucker, who resigned, one of America's most noted educators passes from active college direction.

William Jewett Tucker on July 13 of this year passes his seventieth year. He was a graduate of Dartmouth in the class of '41 and of Andover Theological Seminary 1866. Later he received degrees from Yale, Williams and Wesleyan universities. He was ordained Congregational minister and for some time held the pastorate of Franklin Street church, Manchester, N. H., and later the Madison Square church of New York. In 1893 he was made president of Dartmouth college, where he has since remained in active charge of affairs at this famous old school.

Dr. Tucker's successor, Ernest Fox Nichols, is a much younger man, and on June 1 he was 46-years old. He has been an educator all his life and has studied in many American and foreign colleges and universities, including Kansas Agricultural college, Cornell University of Berlin, Cambridge university and Dartmouth. Professor Nichols is a western man by birth, but much of his life has been spent in the east. He was born at Leavenworth, Kan. He is a scientist and is best known through his various contributions to scientific papers. He is at the present time professor of experimental physics at Columbia university, New York city.

Gardening by Lantern Light.
"I have seen people use every moment of time to good advantage and those who could run a hobby to death, but I never saw a garden being planted by lantern light before," said the girl who lives in the suburbs. "We were on our way to choir practice Friday evening about 8:30 when we saw a man who we thought at first was seeking buried treasures, so stealthily did he move about with lantern hanging close to the ground. As we approached, however, we discovered that he was very busy putting in seed for the summer vegetables, and when we returned, a couple of hours later, he was just finishing up for the night."

Good Stroke of Business.
The £1 note is not the smallest issued by the bank of England. By mistake a note of the value of one penny was made and issued in 1828. It was in circulation for many years, a source of annoyance to the cashiers in making up their accounts. At length the holder of it brought it to the bank and after considerable argument persuaded the authorities to give him £5 for it.

The Genuine Gentleman.
After all, it isn't clothes or deportment, or money, or doing as you'd be done by that makes a gentleman. You've got to be all right and then forget it.—Irving Bacheller.

A Difficult Problem.
It is often difficult to decide whether the most disagreeable people in the world are those who merely think they are our superiors or those who really are.

Measure of Celebrity.
An actress must be well known to have the papers print the fact that she is about to be married; she must be famous in order to have it stated that she is not going to get married.—New York Post.

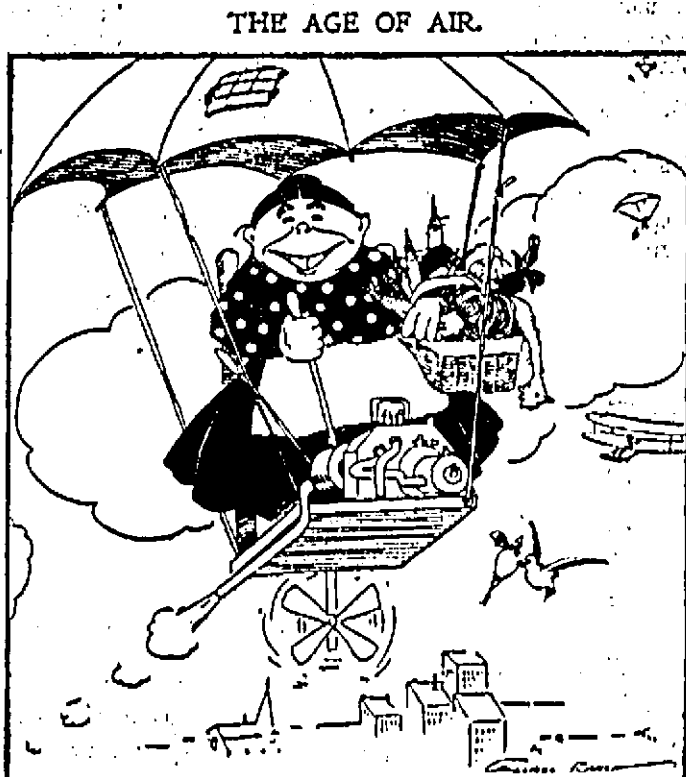

Doing Their Best.
"Those Compuas are determined to make a noise in the world of society." "Are they? Well, they're loud enough."

NOT THE SAME.
Here—I understand you said no girl would ever marry Harry Swift or me because we were too fastidious.
Harry—You didn't catch it quite right. I said you were "two fast idiots."

OF COURSE.
City Salesman—Have you lived here all your life?
Oldest Man in the Village (a Jew)—Can't tell yet—may live a couple of years more.

BIG DIFFERENCE.
Jiggs—When Hunk died his wife gave him an $800 funeral.
Jiggs—That shows the inconsistency of women.
Jiggs—How so?
Jiggs—When he was alive she always made him look like he was dead.

TO AVOID WALKING.
The dramatic critic interviewing Mr. Woody Booth—I suppose acting requires a lot of study and effort.
Woody Booth—No, that's easy. It's getting from town to town that requires study and effort.

COMIC IN HANDY.
The Heavly King—With our foreign Christian friends a would not put so many suspender buttons in their collection.
His Chief Executive—Yes, a few suspenders would come in better.

HANITARY SCENER.
Kullback—That marine painter is making a big hit.
Kullback—Yes, he advertises his paintings as filtered and sterilized water color.

TOLD HIM HIS PLACE.
Bromus—I thought you owned your house.
Woodson—No, I did. I had an argument with my roof last night, and I'm better informed this morning.

Natural Food Products Unbleached MARVEL Flour

Always the best. Nature, in its infinite kindness to mankind, gives us wheat, with all its purity, nourishing and health-giving strength. Flour made in the good old-fashioned, natural way, unbleached, retains all the nourishing and health-giving qualities of wheat. Bleached Flour, the kind now practically in universal use, is not a natural product; it is artificially whitened and contains peroxide of nitrogen, and the U. S. Pure Food Commission has ruled: "The bleaching of flour is a violation of the Pure Food Law of 1906, and instructed the flour mills they will have to discontinue its manufacture and sale."

MARVEL Flour is unbleached. It is pure, wholesome and economical. It has been on the market for years and thousands of Doctors and Pure Food Experts recommend its use. It makes more and better bread, cake and pastry at less cost than bleached flour, and is the only flour for your daily use. For sale by all grocers. If you buy your bread, insist on its being made of MARVEL Unbleached Flour.

 Passed.

Mayor Wilbur F. Carle's appointment, announced at the council meeting last evening, of Attorney Claude
 J. Hendricks as a member of the fire and police commission to fill the unexpired term of the late Collin C.
 MacLean was approved by unanimous vote and will be highly pleasing to the city at large. Alderman Dulin was not quite certain regarding Mr.
 Hendricks' political affiliations and made an inquiry which was answered by Mr. Hendricks with a statement that the appointee professed allegiance to the same party which Mr. MacLean had belonged, namely the democratic.
 The mayor also named J. H. Watson as wood commissioner. When the chair was resumed that of these officials for each side of the river, he said: "One is all we'll have and will not have him for a great while."
 The appointment of William Dulin as special police officer from June 16 to June 22 was confirmed. Aldermen Brown and Evans, who are out of town, were the only city fathers absent from the session.

Water Main Extensions.
 The council accepted a report from the Janesville Water Co., through W.
 W. Titzer, superintendent, that in accordance with instructions it had executed the main on Racine street from Garfield avenue each 800 feet, setting two hydrants as per order of May 10.

A petition from W. S. Pond, S. M.
 Smith, Geo. S. Parker, W. E. Palmer,
 H. C. Summers, C. O. Schorr, and A.
 Whaley asking that the Water Co.
 be instructed to extend its main on Milwaukee avenue 400 feet, the extension to be a continuation of the line now laid on Prospect avenue and ending on Garfield avenue, reduced.

Recommendations of the fire and water committee that the water main be extended westerly 800 feet from the present terminus at the Grant school on Pleasant street; that the main on McKee boulevard and Eastern avenue be extended west on Eastern avenue to Center avenue;
 that the main on Fourth avenue and Bluff street be extended south on Bluff street to the center line of Poncourt 400 feet; that the main on St.
 Mary's avenue be extended from the center line of Prairie avenue to connect with the main on Milton avenue;

that an extension westerly be made from the present terminus of the main on Walker street to connect with a main at the corner of Sutherland and Walker streets; that the main on Northern River street be extended from Madison street to Mineral Point avenue; that the two hy-drants on each side of the central one in front of the woolen mills be taken out and one of them placed on River side street, near the Woolen Mill Co.'s office building; and that the 4-way hydrant owned by the city be placed gineer for water, gas, and sewer service pipes on Madison street from Racine to North Jackson, and on North Washington street from Racine street to Mineral Point avenue, were approved and the pipes ordered laid at the expense of the property owners.

Instructions were given to the city engineer to file a new grade for the Racine street from a point 400 feet easterly from the easterly line of South Bluff street to Logan street, for the purpose of lowering the grade at the intersection of Garfield avenue, sufficiently to drain the water from the said avenue over the surface into Racine street.

Sidewalk grades for the north side of Pleasant street, from Jackson to High street, and for the west side of Jackson street, from Dodge street to Pleasant street, were submitted by that official and adopted.

The street assessment committee was authorized to secure proposals and let the contract for the construction of a cast-iron covered gutter across East street on the south side of St. Lawrence avenue.

Repairs And Crosswalks.
 The street commissioner was directed by orders to repair the gutter between Madison and Palm streets; to

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"I shouldn't be worried," she said simply, "with you here."

Whatever answer he would have made he was obliged to postpone because of the return of the guard, with a handful of time tables, and when, rewarded with a modest gratuity, the man had gone his way and Kirkwood turned again to the girl who had withdrawn her attention for the time.

Unconsciously of his bold regard, she was dreaming, her thoughts at loose ends, her eyes studying the incalculable depths of blue black night that swirled and eddied beyond the window glass. The most shadowy of smiles touched her lips; the faintest shade of deepened color rested on her cheeks. She was thinking of him? As long as he dared the young man, his heart in his own eyes, watched her greedily, taking a miser's joy of her youthful beauty, striving with all his soul to analyze the enigma of that most inscrutable smile.

It baffled him. He could not say of what she thought and told him bitterly that it was not for him, a pauper, to presume a place in her meditations. He must not forget his circumstances nor let her tolerance render him oblivious to his place, which must be a servant's, not a lover's.

The better to convince himself of this he plunged desperately into a forlorn attempt to make head or tail of Belgian railway schedules, complicated as these of necessity are by the alteration from normal time notation to the abnormal system sanctioned by the government, and vice versa, with every truth that crosses a boundary line of the state.

So preoccupied did he become in this pursuit that he was subconsciously impressed that the girl had spoken twice over he could detach his interest from the exasperatingly inconclusive and ineffectual cohorts of ranked figures.

"Can't you find out anything?" Dorothy was asking.

"Precious little," he grumbled. "I'd give my head for a Bradshaw! Only it wouldn't be a fair exchange. There seems to be an express for Brussels leaving the Gare du Nord, Brussels, at fifty-five minutes after 23 o'clock, and if I'm not mistaken that's the latest train out of Brussels and the earliest we can catch—if we can catch it. I've never been in Brussels, and heaven only knows how long it would take us to catch it from the Gare du Nord to the Nord."

In this statement, however, Mr. Kirkwood was fortunately mistaken. Not only heaven, it appeared, had cognizance of the distance between the two stations. While Kirkwood was still debating the question, with pessimistic tendencies, the friendly guard had occasion to pass through the coach and, being tapped, yielded the desired information with entire tractability.

It would be a cab ride of perhaps ten minutes. Monsieur, however, would serve himself well if he offered the driver an advance tip as an incentive to speedy driving. Why? Why, because (here the guard consulted his watch, and Kirkwood very keenly regretted the loss of his own)—because this train, announced to arrive in Brussels some twenty minutes prior to the departure of that other, was already late. But, yes, a matter of some ten minutes—could that not be made up? Ah, monsieur, but who should say?

The guard departed, doubtless with private views as to the madness of all English speaking travelers.

"And there we are!" commented Kirkwood in facetious resignation. "If we're obliged to stop overnight in Brussels our friends will be on our back before we can get out in the morning if they have to come by motor car." He reflected bitterly on the fact that with but a little more money at his disposal he, too, could take a motor car and ery defiance to their persecutors. "However," he amended, with rising spirits, "so much the better our chances of losing Mr. Hobbs. We must be ready to drop off the instant the train stops."

He began to unfold another time table, threatening again to lose him completely, and was thrown into the utmost confusion by the touch of the girl's hand, in appeal placed lightly on his arm. And had she been observant she might have seen a second time his knuckles whiten beneath the skin as he asserted his self control, though this time not over his temper.

His eyes, dumbly eloquent, turned to meet hers. She was smiling.

"Please!" she pleaded, with the least imperative pressure on his hand, pushing the folder aside.

"I beg pardon?" he muttered blankly. "Is it not necessary, now, to study those schedules? Haven't you decided to try for the Bruges express?"

"Why, yes, but—" "Then please don't leave me to my thoughts all the time, Mr. Kirkwood. There was a tremor of laughter in her eyes, but her eyes were grave and earnest. "I'm very weary of thinking round in a circle, and that," she concluded, with a nervous little laugh, "is all I've had to do for days."

"I'm afraid I'm very stupid," he humored her.

She watched him, a little piqued by his absentmindedness for a moment, then, and not without a trace of malice, "Just I tell you again what to talk about?" she asked.

"Forgive me. I was thinking about it not talking to you. I've been wordering just why it was that you left the Althea at Queensborough to go on by steamer."

And immediately he was sorry that his needless query had swung the conversation to bear upon her father, the thought of whom could not but prove painful to her. But it was too late to mend matters. Already her evanescent flush of amusement had given place to remembrance.

"It was on my father's account," she told him in a steady voice, but with averted eyes. "He is a very poor sailor, and the promise of a rough passage terrified him. I believe there was a difference of opinion about it, he disputing with Mr. Mulready and Captain Stryker. That was just after we had left the anchorage. They both insisted that it was safer to continue by the Althea, but he wouldn't listen to them and in the end had his way. Captain Stryker ran the brigantine into the mouth of the Medway and put us ashore just in time to catch the steamer."

"Were you sorry for the change?"

"I?" She shuddered slightly. "Hardly! I think I hated the ship from the moment I set foot on board her. It was a dreadful place. It was all nightmarish that night, but it seemed most terrible on the Althea with Captain Stryker and that abominable Mr. Hobbs. I think that my unhappiness had as much to do with my father's insistence on the change as anything. He was very thoughtful most of the time."

Kirkwood shut his teeth on what he knew of the blackguard.

"I don't know why," she continued, wholly without affectation, "but I was wretched from the moment you left me in the cab to wait while you went in to see Mrs. Hallam. And when you left you at Bernoulli Old Stairs, after what you had said to me, I felt—I hardly know what to say—abandoned in a way."

"But you were with your father, in his care."

"I know, but I was getting confused. Until then the excitement had kept me from thinking. But you made me think. I began to wonder, to question. But what could I do?" She emphasized her helplessness with a quick and dainty movement of her hands. "He is my father, and I'm not yet of age, you know."

"I thought so," he confessed, troubled. "It's very inconsiderate of you, you must admit."

"I don't understand."

"Because of the legal complication. I'm no doubt your father can have the law on me."—Kirkwood laughed unweildly—"for taking you from his protection."

"Protection?" she echoed warmly. "If you call it that?"

"Kidnaping," he said thoughtfully. "I presume that'd be the charge."

"Oh!" She laughed the notion to scorn. "Besides, they must catch us first, mustn't they?"

"Of course, and—with a simulation of confidence sadly deceitful—"they" she said, "Mr. Hobbs to the contrary notwithstanding."

"You make me share your confidence against my better judgment."

"I wish your better judgment would counsel you to share your confidence with me," he caught her up. "If you would only tell me what it's all about, as far as you know, I'd be better able to figure out what we ought to do."

CHAPTER XXV.

BRIEFLY the girl sat silent, staring before her with awe-stricken, somber eyes. Then, "In the very beginning," she told him, with a conscious laugh—"this sounds story bookish. I know—in the very beginning George Burgoyne Calendar, an American, married his cousin a dozen times removed and an Englishwoman, Alice Burgoyne Hallam."

"Hallam!"

"Wait, please." She sat up, bending forward and frowning down upon her interlacing gloved fingers. She was finding it difficult to say what she must. Kirkwood, watching hungrily the full drooping head, the flawless profile clear and radiant against the night blackened window, saw hot signals of shame burning on her cheek and throat and forehead.

"But never mind," he began awkwardly.

"No," she told him, with decision. "Please let me go on." She continued, stammering, trusting to his sympathy to bridge the gaps in her narrative. "My father—there was trouble of some sort—not all events, he disappeared when I was a baby. My mother—died. I was reared in the home of my great-uncle, Colonel George Burgoyne of the Indian army, retired. My mother had been his favorite niece, they say. I presume that was why he cared for me. I grew up in his home in Cornwall. A year ago he died, leaving me everything—the town house in Fog-nall street, his estate in Cornwall. Everything was willed to me on condition that I must never live with my father nor in any way contribute to his support. If I disobeyed, the entire estate without reserve was to go to his nearest of kin. Colonel Burgoyne was unmarried and had no children."

The girl paused, lifting to Kirkwood's face her eyes, clear, fearless, truthful. "I never was given to undraped, but there was anybody who could inherit other than myself," she declared.

"I see."

"Last week I received a letter, signed with my father's name, begging me to appoint an interview with him in London. I did so—guess how gladly! I was alone in the world, and he my father, whom I had never thought to see. We met at his hotel, the Plaza. He wanted me to come and live with him; said that he was growing old and lonely and needed a daughter's love and care. He told me that he had made a fortune in America and was amply able to provide for us both. As for my inheritance, he persuaded me that it was by right the property of Frederick Hallam, Mrs. Hallam's son."

"I have met the young gentleman," interpolated Kirkwood.

"His name was new to me, but my father assured me that he was the next of kin mentioned in Colonel Burgoyne's will and convinced me that I had no real right to the property. After all, he was my father. I agreed. I could not bear the thought of wronging anybody. I was to give up everything but my mother's jewels. It seems—my father said—I don't—I can't believe it now."

She choked out a little, dry sob. It was some time before she seemed able to continue.

"I was told that my great-uncle's collection of jewels had been my mother's property. He had in life a passion for collecting jewels, and it had been his whim to carry them with him wherever he went. When he died in Fog-nall street they were in the safe by the head of his bed. I, in my grief, at first forgot them and then afterward carelessly put off removing them."

"To come back to my father, night before last we were to call on Mrs. Hallam. It was to be our last night in England. We were to sail for the continent on the private yacht of a friend of my father's the next morning. This is what I was told and believed. You understand."

"That night Mrs. Hallam was dining at another table at Plaza, it seems. I did not then know her. When leaving she put a note on our table by my father's elbow. I was astonished beyond words. He seemed much agitated, told me that he was called away on urgent business, a matter of life and death, and begged me to go alone to Fog-nall street, get the jewels and meet him at Mrs. Hallam's later. I wasn't altogether a fool, for I began dimly to suspect then that something was wrong, but I was a fool, for I consented to do as he desired. You understand—you know?"

"I do, indeed," replied Kirkwood grimly. "I understand a lot of things now that I didn't five minutes ago. Please let me think."

But the time he took for deliberation was short. He had hoped to find a way to spare her by sparing Calendar, but momentarily he was becoming more impressed with the futility of dealing with her save in terms of candor—merciful, though they might seem harsh.

"I must tell you," he said, "that you have been outrageously misled, swindled and deceived. I have heard from your father's own lips that Mrs. Hallam was to pay him £2,000 for keeping you out of England and losing you your inheritance. I'm inclined to question, furthermore, the assertion that these jewels were your mother's. Frederick Hallam was the man who followed you into the Fog-nall street house and attacked me on the stairs. Mrs. Hallam admits that he went there to get the jewels. But he didn't want anybody to know it."

"But that doesn't prove—"

"Just a minute." Rapidly and concisely Kirkwood recounted the events wherein he had played a part subsequent to the adventure of Bernoulli Old Stairs. He was guilty of but one evasion. On one point only did he slur the truth. He conceived it his honorable duty to keep the girl in ignorance of his strained circumstances. She was not to be distressed by knowledge of his distress, nor could he tolerate the suggestion of seeming to play for her sympathy. It was necessary, then, to invent a motive to excuse his return to No. 9 Fog-nall street. I believe he chose to exaggerate the loneliness of his nature and threw in for good measure a desire to recover a prized trinket of his particular moment, esteemed for its associations, and so forth. But, whatever the fabrication, it passed muster. To the girl his motives seemed less important than the discoveries that resulted from them.
